StreetlightUK ETHOS

Each of us has a different shaped faith, as God meets with us as individuals. Jesus showed us how to live life to the full, empowered through the day-to-day breath of God's Holy Spirit. We seek to live like Him – empowered by and dependent on the Spirit and learning from His teachings and His life on earth.

We believe in 'the priesthood of all believers', which means all, are created equal. We are all part of one body - the universal church, and Jesus is the Head. We are to be literal good news to all we meet, just like Jesus was.

But we are to share it in community. Wrestling through our beliefs, our doubts (as John the Baptist did) and our thoughts and actions are a part of living life as a Christian. This often means that we don't agree on every doctrinal detail, but we believe that this is part of the beauty of being in community with those seeking to become more like Jesus each day. The ethos of StreetlightUK is at the heart of how we work and is motivated by our Christian faith and governed by biblical principles. However, no one is ever excluded from any level of service StreetlightUK offers due to any faith held or not held on their part, although as a volunteer you would be expected to adhere to and agree with the StreetlightUK ethos. Compassion motivates us, and we seek to serve people who are often marginalised and misunderstood by society to the best of our ability recognising the inherent value of each individual we encounter. Jesus showed this humility and conviction throughout His life, and we continue to be inspired and invigorated by His example and message. We are committed to social justice and opposed to all forms of discriminatory practice. No person seeking help and support from Streetlight will be treated less favourably on grounds of: race, colour, gender, age, religion or sexual orientation. By offering befriending and support we seek to show options, and increase an individual's capability to make positive decisions for themselves.
